

1. Grammar Bytes!

Go to ChompChomp.com

Click on the green dragon, scroll down, and find “exercises.” This site is fun and easy to use but limited in scope. Includes practice on subject-verb agreement, irregular verbs, pronouns, and some common homonyms.

2. English Language Centre Study Zone (University of Victoria )

Type in web address: <http://web2.uvcs.uvic.ca/elc/studyzone/index.htm>

Includes many exercises at different levels of difficulty; good for parts of speech (see level 330), verb tenses, conjunctions.

3. Gallaudet University

Go to web address: <http://depts.gallaudet.edu/englishworks/>

Good for learning the basics. Click on “Grammar” in box at right. See “Parts of Speech” in Grammar Index. Also explore “Gallaudet's Writer's Handbook,” “Grammar Exercises,” and “Helpful Links.”

4. Empire State College: Writer's Complex 21st Century

Go to web address: <http://www.esc.edu/writer>

See "Punctuation Points"(includes one exercise on misspelled/misused words); see also "Grammar Workout" for useful explanations and exercises on identifying sentence types, sentence structure errors, noun/pronoun agreement problems, etc.

5. The Blue Book of Grammar and Punctuation

Go to web address: <http://www.grammarbook.com/>

See box on left. Click on “English Rules” or “Quizzes.” See links for quizzes and interactive tests. Good for practice in finding subjects and verbs, for drills on subject-verb agreement, pronouns, punctuation, etc.

6. Ohio University ESL

Go to web address: <http://www.ohiou.edu/esl/english/grammar/activities.html>

Provides links to many grammar web sites. See the “Self-Study Grammar Quizzes” and “Verb Tense Introduction.”

7. ESL ( Internet TESL Journal )

Go to web address: <http://a4esl.org/>

Another site designed for ESL students but has many good grammar quizzes at different levels of difficulty. Includes practice exercises on present and past tenses of irregular verbs, including verb “to be.”

8. HyperGrammar (University of Ottawa )

Go to web address: <http://www.uottawa.ca/academic/arts/writcent/hypergrammar/>

A good site for parts of speech and sentence types. Some advanced level explanations and quizzes, especially on clauses and phrases.

9. On-Line Writing Lab from Purdue University

Go to web address: <http://owl.english.purdue.edu/handouts/grammar/>

See particular grammar topics of interest for explanations of grammar rules, examples of correct usage, and exercises. Also, scroll down to find some “Interactive Exercises” on punctuation, fragments, subject-verb agreement, pronouns, tense consistency, “sound-alikes,” etc.

10 The English Page

Go to web address: <http://www.englishpage.com/grammar/>

Especially good for verb tense practice. Lots of exercises on perfect and progressive tenses.

11. Guide to Grammar and Writing (Capital Community College )

Go to web address: <http://grammar.ccc.commnet.edu/grammar/>

See box, “Ask Grammar, Quizzes, Search Devices.” Click “Select From” arrow in box. Select “170 Interactive Quizzes.” See in particular “Notorious Confusables” as well as exercises on recognizing parts of speech, on subject-verb agreement, irregular verbs, clauses and phrases, sentence structure errors, sentence types, etc. (A good web site with lots of exercises but includes some advanced terminology. English 0099 students will find some exercises more useful than others.)

12. University of Calgary

Revised Summer, 2008

http://www.aug.edu/~mduignan/Grammar\_Practice\_Web\_Sites.htm

Go to web site: <http://www.ucalgary.ca/UofC/eduweb/grammar/>

Good for explanations and exercises on parts of speech, sentence types, sentence structure errors.

13. English Plus

Go to web address : <http://englishplus.com/grammar/>

This site has good definitions and explanations of grammar terms. Includes a long list of homonyms and words often confused. No interactive grammar exercises.

14. EnglishClub.Com

Go to web site: <http://www.englishclub.com/grammar>

Scroll down to “Grammar Quizzes,” particularly parts of speech and verb tenses.

15. UsingEnglish.Com

Go to web address: <http://www.usingenglish.com/>

Scroll down and see ESL Tests. Click on “Quizzes.” Includes exercises on use of is/are, has/have, was/were, does/do, will/would, there is/ there are.

16. English Exercises Online

Go to web address: <http://www.smic.be/smic5022/index.htm>

See “Activities” and then click on “Grammar and dictation.”

17. Interactive Online Grammar Quizzes

Go to web site: <http://www.cityu.edu.hk/elc/iowa/quiz>

Good for irregular verbs, sentence structure, sentence types, sentence structure errors, etc.

18. The Grammar Gorillas

Go to web address: <http://www.funbrain.com/grammar/index.html>

This site is juvenile but fun. Good for learning how to identify parts of speech.

19. Big Dog's Grammar

Go to web site: <http://aliscot.com/bigdog/>

Easy to use. Good for sentence structure errors, including dangling modifiers and parallelism, subject-verb agreement, etc.

20. The Wide Word of Verbs

Web site – <http://www.kyrene.org/schools/brisas/sunda/verb/enter.htm>

Designed for grammar school students, but includes introductory info on action, helping, and state of being verbs.

21. Daily Grammar

Web site <http://www.dailygrammar.com/>

Click on “Lesson Archives.” This is another site geared toward grammar school students, but it includes very good basic information. Very useful for those who need an “easy to understand” quick review of grammar fundamentals.

22. The English Grammar Practice Website

<http://members.cox.net/teachro/>

This site is designed for young people but includes lots of useful basic information. Click on “Grammar Practice.” Also, this site shows diagrams of sentences (see “Diagramming”).

Last Update: August 28, 2007